

WDAM7

Company Cleans Windows for Cancer Patient Petal

Fish Window Cleaners remove equipment from vehicle and clean windows of a home.

News Anchor: in recognition of Breast Cancer Awareness Month, Fish Window Cleaning donated their services to a victim battling the deadly disease.

Franchise owner, Justin Creighton, talking with donation recipient, Beth Strahan.

After an online poll was conducted, Beth Strahan of Petal was chosen to have all the windows in her home washed free of charge.

Fish Window Cleaners cleaning residential windows.

Clean windows can make a huge difference in the atmosphere of a home and this was the company's way of helping to make Beth's days a little brighter.

Beth Strahan Battling Breast Cancer

Beth Strahan: It's things like this that remind us every day that God is with us and, you know, even through our darkest times,

Fish Window Cleaners cleaning residential windows.

He's here with us to help us and guide us through and so I thank them for doing this for us. It really is something that is helpful. It's something that's unique and we appreciate it.

Justin Creighton Owner – Fish Window Cleaning

Justin Creighton: Well, in the world we live in today, we could all use to be a little more kind to one another so it certainly brings joy to me, my guys, my crew, my family, that we're able to do this for Miss Beth. I wish we could do more but yeah it certainly brings us joy to being able to do this for them.

Fish Window Cleaners cleaning residential windows.

News Anchor: Fish Window Cleaning has been in business for two years and they say they plan to make this an annual event.